As global threats evolve and geopolitical tensions rise, Canada's defence and security sectors are rapidly adapting through technological innovation, sustainable strategies, and expanded collaboration. This special feature will examine the modernization of Canadian defence capabilities — from cyber and aerospace to naval and AI-driven systems — while spotlighting the challenges and opportunities shaping the future of national and global security.

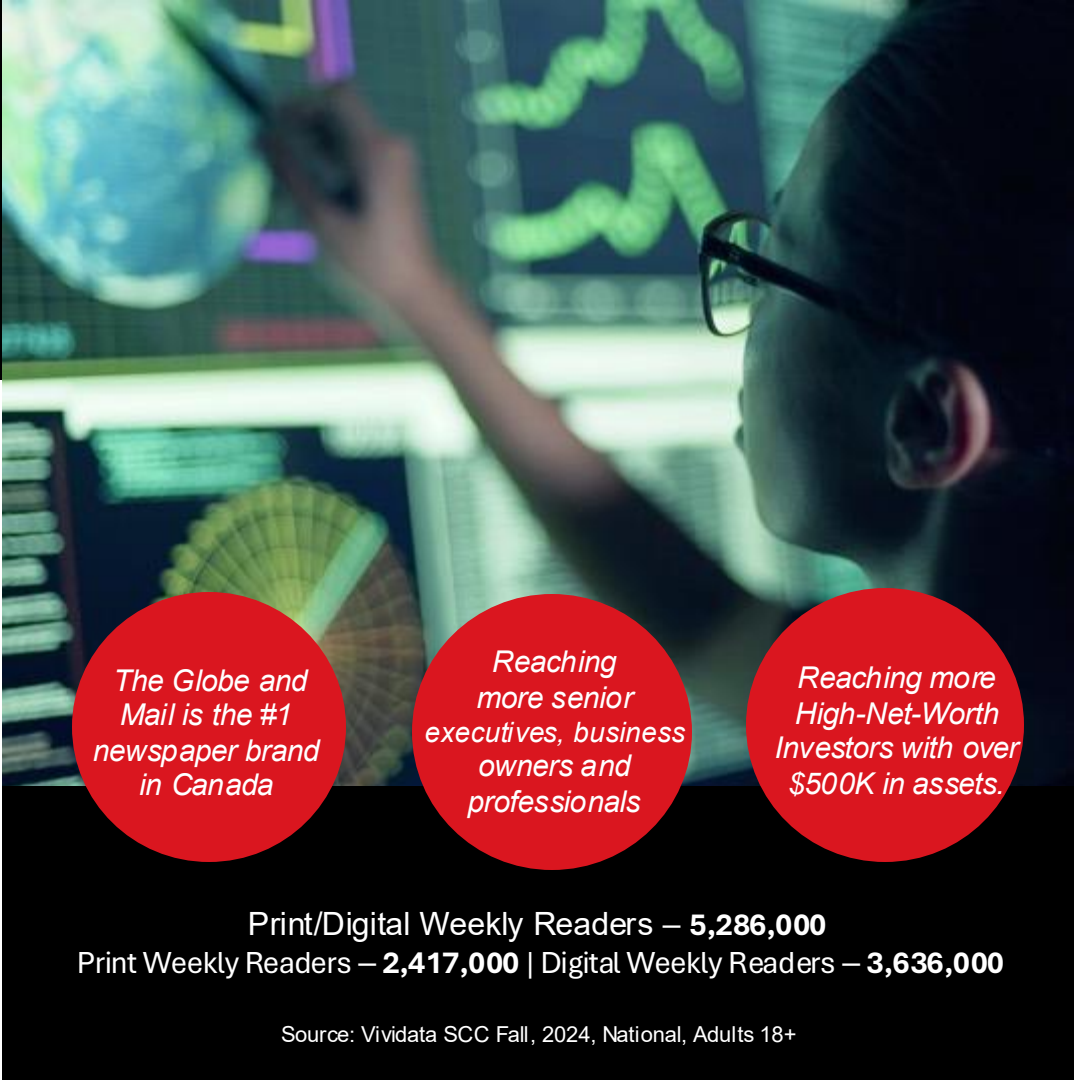

Proposed topic highlights:

- Next-Gen Defence Innovation: Unveiling breakthroughs in cyber defence, naval engineering, unmanned systems, AI integration, and more.
- Supply Chain Resilience: Addressing vulnerabilities and exploring domestic strategies to secure defence-critical supply chains.
- Canada's Global Position: How international partnerships, NATO commitments, and bilateral initiatives are strengthening Canadian capabilities and interoperability.
- Sustainability in Security: The growing role of green technologies and sustainable practices in defence planning and procurement.
- Future Threats and Trends: Expert insights on emerging global risks — from hybrid warfare to digital espionage — and how Canada is preparing.
