International Women’s Day

Tuesday, March 8, 2025 Produced by Randall Anthony Communications. The Globe’s Editorial Department was not involved.

Promoting gender parity, challenging stereotypes and empowering women catalyze a powerful potential: transformational change driven by female scientists, innovators and activists

Science Stories

Female scientists are driving innovation in AI, space exploration and climate change. From quantum computing to Mars rovers, women are leading the way in groundbreaking research.

AI & Women

Artificial intelligence is reshaping industries, and women are at the forefront. From algorithm development to ethical AI, female leaders are driving the future of technology.

Space & Women

The dream of space exploration is becoming reality, and women are paving the way. From astronaut training to satellite technology, women are breaking barriers in the cosmos.

Climate & Women

Climate change is a global challenge, and women are leading the fight. From renewable energy to sustainable agriculture, women are driving the transition to a greener future.

CLOSING THE HEALTH EQUITY GAP THROUGH RESEARCH, INNOVATION AND INCLUSION

International Women’s Day is a global opportunity to recognize the achievements of women across sectors while acknowledging the work that remains in achieving equity and inclusion. In Canada, women continue to lead innovation, drive economic growth, and foster community impact — yet barriers to representation, leadership, and fair compensation persist. Timed for International Women’s Day, this special feature will spotlight stories of leadership, allyship, and action, showcasing the individuals and organizations creating meaningful change.

Proposed topic highlights:

- Women in Leadership: Highlighting trailblazers across business, government, science, and social impact.
- Workplace Equity: Exploring strategies to close the gender pay gap, boost representation, and foster inclusive cultures.
- Entrepreneurship & Innovation: Spotlighting women-led businesses and startups that are transforming industries.
- Support Networks: The role of mentorship, sponsorship, and community programs in advancing women’s careers.
- Financial Empowerment: Tools and resources helping women build wealth and navigate financial independence.
- Next Generation Voices: Young leaders shaping the future through activism, creativity, and innovation.
